Important Dates:

The Con Book Publication Deadline for Intervention 2011 is August 21, 2011. All payments and ad copy would need to be submitted by that date to be within our Con Book and other on-site materials.

What is Intervention?

Intervention is a new Indie Creator convention in the Washington, DC metro area that was founded by known webcomic and indie creator personalities Onezumi and Harknell (www.Onezumi.com). We are a highly targeted event focused on tech-savvy creative people that live on the Internet and the fandom around it. (Webcomics, Social Media Mavens, Gamers, Independent Artists).

Why are tech-savvy indie creators coming to Intervention?

- New Format: They want to go to a new type of convention that is focused on what the fans want.
- By the Scene for the Scene: They want to support the community. This convention is being planned and staffed by congenial and recognizable members of their scene and spearheaded by two of the most vocal and friendly internet personalities.
- Industry Networking: They want to network with other fans and creative professionals.
- Education: They want to learn how to make a comic, blog, podcast, or other creative business that is conducted through the Internet.
- Fun: They want to shop, dance, and play games with their friends.

Why sponsor Intervention?

- Targeted Revenue: To increase revenue by working within our highly targeted fandom demographic (18-45 yr. old males).
- Vocal Fans: To increase brand awareness and gain evangelical fans thanks to the passionate community vibe of our event. Approximately 40% of pre-registrations for the 2010 event elected to donate an additional amount toward the convention because we aren't a big company. They know how much Onezumi and Harknell believe in this and that we will do it well.
- Attendee Reach: To gain exposure with our attendees who have flown in from all over the country. We had 527 attendees for our first event in 2010 even though we ended up opposite another indie creator convention in the same town. We expect to expand in 2011. We can accommodate up to 1,750 attendees in our current location.
- Web Presence Reach: Thanks to our guerilla marketing campaign your brand will reach eyes all over the world. Con founders Onezumi and Harknell are leveraging the pre-existing fandom for their own creative works to amplify the signal. Some ways are:
 - Maintaining an active website, Facebook, and Twitter that is updated regularly with quality posts.
 - Conducting a promotional tour with other fandom conventions that include things like Intervention parties, contests, autograph signings, speaking engagements, and registration drives.
 - Keeping an active calendar of podcast appearances and interviews.

In addition to this, in 2010 our guests' web presence reached over 4 million+ unique readers a month. They are actively committed to helping Onezumi and Harknell publicize companies or entities that support our event. We intend to do the same in 2011.
